General Information

Notice of Assignment of License

Once an individual or entity obtains a license to any type of intellectual property (trademark, patent or copyright), they have the rights to use that intellectual property according to the license provisions. Under certain circumstances, assignment of this license may be necessary or warranted. This Notice of Assignment of License acts as an official notice that the rights and interests under the license have been assigned to another.

This Notice of Assignment of License sets forth the name of the registered owner, a description of the license and the name of assignee. Having a written Notice of Assignment of License will prove invaluable in the event of disagreements or litigation.

Instructions and Checklist

Notice of Assignment of License

- Read the Notice of Assignment carefully.
- Insert all requested information in the spaces provided on the form.
- Keep this notice with your other important corporate records. It is often a good idea to keep this notice together with the assignment.
- All legal documents should be kept in a safe location such as a fireproof safe or safe deposit box.
